

How Insurgents Advance in Spanish Civil War

General Franco

View of Tarragona

With the possible end of the Spanish civil war resting in the capture of Barcelona, Spanish insurgent troops continue their advances toward the besieged Loyalist capital in Catalonia, capturing the important cities of Tarragona, second city of Catalonia, which is within 37 miles of Barcelona along the interior front, and Cervera, 47 airline miles west of Barcelona. Insurgent spokesmen announced that their armies have taken control of 2,789 square miles of territory since the drive toward Barcelona began. Gen. Francisco Franco's troops also took over Reus, important town.

RUMOR CHANGES IN NAZI SETUP

Reports Indicate Added Power For Field Marshal Goering

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Rumors of a re-organizing of the Nazi administration involving such men as Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels and others were current in Berlin today.

They coincided with the return to his desk, in the propaganda ministry, of Goebbels after nearly a month's illness. Official sources declined to confirm or deny them.

According to these reports, circulated by men usually in a position to know, Goering will shortly become vice-chancellor and minister of war. Both posts have been vacant for some time—the vice-chancellorship since Franz von Papen, its last holder, was made special ambassador to Austria after the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfus in 1934, and the war ministry since the resignation of field marshal Werner von Blomberg in February, 1938.

Goering now is chief of the four-year economic self-sufficiency plan and air minister, in addition to holding numerous lesser posts. The additional appointments would make him more conspicuously than ever Germany's No. 2 man.

Reorganized

LISBON, Jan. 18.—Reorganization of the Salinville village school board was announced today, the officers being Walter Holt, president; Earl D. Holmes, vice president, and H. G. Hall, clerk.

LOAN COMPANY HAS 'BIRTHDAY'

Home Savings Celebrating Its 50th Anniversary

The Home Savings & Loan Co., which has had a branch office in Salem since 1925, this week is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

The institution has grown from what was once a sideline for a country lawyer, to a big business with assets of some $22,000,000 and employing 75 persons. One of its founders was James McKay, now president.

Main office of the Home Savings & Loan is at Youngstown.

McKay, one of seven children in a family of Scotch-Irish ancestry, came to Youngstown in 1888 after graduating from National Normal university at Lebanon and reading law under a relative in Illinois.

It was hard work making a living as a young lawyer so McKay decided early in life to specialize in real estate law. When he learned of the building and loan movement, he investigated it.

He and some friends discussed establishment of a savings and loan company and on Jan. 15, 1889, made application for a charter.

Today President McKay said: "The management believes in continuity of service. Practically without exception the important posts in the company's affairs have been filled by promotions from the ranks."

The Salem branch has been successfully operated ever since its establishment. C. D. Gow has been manager of the office for the last 10 years.

He expressed appreciation of the support given the institution by the Salem public, explaining that more than 1,000 homes have been financed through the office, and that since the time of its establishment here, 5,000 different individuals have had savings accounts.

The modern Home Savings & Loan building was erected in 1928.

REBELS MAKING SLOW ADVANCE

Fight Way Across Gaya River In Drive On Barcelona

(By Associated Press) HENDAYE, France (The Spanish Frontier), Jan. 18.—Insurgent forces pushing northeastward along the Mediterranean toward Barcelona today fought their way across the Gaya river where they had been held since shortly after the fall of Tarragona Sunday.

Burgos field bulletins reported the capture of Alcala and Vespella, both of the east side of the river which until late yesterday had marked the government's defense line. Both villages are about 42 miles from Barcelona.

While the advance in this sector placed Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops about three miles nearer the Catalan capital, the insurgent columns led personally by Franco directly west of Barcelona apparently were slowed down by stiffened government resistance.

These forces, moving along the Lerida-Barcelona highway, were roughly about 35 miles from Barcelona. They devoted their attention mainly to cleaning up a wide government pocket south and south-east of Cervera, reporting the capture of a dozen villages.

They were preparing for what military observers believed would be a renewal of fighting in the mountains northwest of the government capital.

Military observers at the border followed with keen interest the apparent strategy of insurgent commanders in their maneuvers on the central front. The campaign apparently was being turned north of the Lerida-Barcelona highway because of the stiff government resistance between Cervera and Igualada, coupled with difficulties in fighting a path through the mountainous territory.

Insurgent headquarters at Burgos relayed military bulletins reporting victories in southwestern Spain where the government has been conducting an offensive in an effort to force Franco to send reinforcements from the Catalan front.

Caplan Discusses Refugee Problem

Atty. Lozier Caplan, addressing a dinner meeting of the Quota club last night at the Memorial building, discussed the present refugee problem and possible solutions.

Atty. Caplan described conditions in Palestine where great numbers of Jewish refugees have gone and emphasized the fact that German propaganda among the Arabs is causing the present strife and unrest in the country.

Mrs. Caplan was a guest at the dinner and program.

The auditor's report was given during the short business session. The club will meet Jan. 31 at the Memorial building.

OHIO EDISON SEEKING NEW FRANCHISE

CITY - COUNTY SALES TAX 'CUT' MAY BE PARED

Bill Would Limit To Ten Million The Local Allocations

ASK IMMEDIATE ACTION ON PLAN

Ear-marking Clauses Also To Be Knocked Out By Measure

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, Jan. 18.—The state administration, striving to find enough money to finance its own operations, took steps today to cut down the cities and counties' share of the sales tax revenue.

A bill to limit to $10,000,000 the local governments' allocation of the sales tax will be introduced immediately, said Frank E. Whittemore, senate majority leader.

The local governments now receive 40 per cent of the sales tax funds, after deductions for poor relief and administration. This 40 per cent was approximately $16,000,000 in 1937 and $12,000,000 in 1938.

Hits School Clause
The bill at the same time will knock out the clause ear-marking 60 per cent of the sales tax for the schools, Whittemore said, and turn the money into the general revenue fund, from which the school foundation program would be financed.

Asked whether the cities and counties which have been using the state-collected revenue for operating expenses would raise a serious objection, Whittemore replied they undoubtedly would but that they would have to economize as the administration is doing.

The share of some communities may be reduced even further if the legislature requires 13 cities, counties and townships to repay out of the allocation $38,639 worth of relief notes which they issued in 1937.

RECORD CROWD AT INSTITUTE

More Than 400 At Morning Sessions As Farm Groups Convene

A record crowd for an opening session was recorded this morning when at least 400 persons crowded the Memorial building auditorium for the 11th annual Salem Farmers' Institute got under way.

Snow and ice-covered highways in some sections, apparently, had not kept the folk on the farms. At the noon recess, many persons gathered in family groups to eat the dinner which they had brought with them. Some went to restaurants while still others, living close to town, went home for lunch.

An even larger attendance was expected this afternoon to hear Ralph H. Moyer of the U. S. Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Washington, D. C. The election of officers will be held tomorrow morning.

The opening session today was in charge of Mr. Nebo grange and the program featured talks by both state speakers, Asa Mattern of Frederickburg and Mrs. Bessie Zigler of Amboy, Ind.

"Liquor, Spare My Son" was the subject of Mattern's address this morning. He cited the evils of liquor and charged that people are equally responsible for the evils of intemperance.

He said that if the money spent for alcoholic drinks was spent for other purposes, business would be helped greatly. The big breweries haven't helped unemployment, he said, because only a few men are needed to operate the machinery they have.

Mrs. Zigler, speaking on "For What We Get in Life We Pay," urged her listeners to enjoy life but not to try and get everything and be selfish because "we pay for such actions." She also cited the golden rule as a good example to follow.

Penalties Await Tag Delinquents

LISBON, Jan. 18.—With the current sale of dog licenses less than half the number sold during the corresponding period in 1938, T. A. Eckstein, in charge of sales at the court house, prepared to impose a $1 penalty when the deadline expires Friday.

At closing time Tuesday only 2,937 tags had been sold, comparable with 6500 sold at the expiration of the time limit last year. In addition to the penalty dog owners face a possible fine ranging from $1 to $25 for harboring unlicensed pets.

Dog Warden Dan Butch stated Tuesday his office would maintain a close check on this year as the result of several complaints regarding stray dogs. He points out that the law provided fines for permitting dogs to run at large whether licensed or otherwise.

In 1938, 8,000 licenses were purchased.

Improve Ditch

LEONTONIA, Jan. 18.—A group of 80 WPA workers commenced work this morning of a $10,000 project to improve what is known as the Leontonia ditch. Authorization to start the job was received yesterday.

The channel will be widened and straightened to the dam, a distance of 565 feet, from a point where the ditch was improved under an earlier project.

STATE OFFICE EQUIPMENT IS REPORTED LOST

Two Examiners Today Begin Check Of All Ohio Departments

TYPEWRITERS AND CAMERAS MISSING

Beightler Says Hassenplug Gave Orders To Burn Records

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, Jan. 18.—On the trail of what Gov. John W. Bricker said was "considerable" equipment missing from state offices, two examiners began today a check of all state departments.

They were assigned by Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson last night, shortly after Bricker announced that he had directed the auditor to trace the equipment gone from the highway, welfare and executive offices.

The auditor is charged with keeping an inventory of all state property, Bricker asserted.

Plans Complete Check
Ferguson said that the examiners would make a complete check of all physical property in each department.

"We are going to get to the bottom of this and find out where this equipment is," he added.

Bricker said that he had been informed that expensive cameras and typewriters were missing from the highway department offices, and that records in that division and the welfare department were gone. Highway Director Robert S. Beightler said Monday that personal records in 10 of 12 division offices had been destroyed two days before the new administration took office Jan. 9.

Pointing to his own office, Bricker said he understood that new typewriters had been installed shortly before his government took charge, but added "we found nothing but old ones."

As department heads continued slashing pay rolls to carry out Bricker's economy orders, the number of state employees discharged neared 1,900.

Beightler announced the dismissal of 150 employees in division 10 with headquarters at Marietta and said that the total discharges in his department now numbered 1,310.

Hassenplug Accused
The highway director also announced that orders to burn the division records were given by Xenophon G. Hassenplug, former chief of maintenance. Hassenplug was appointed superintendent of state-owned buildings in Columbus, but since has been laid off.

Beightler said that he would charge J. Matthew Carr, suspended department personnel director, with ordering his (Carr's) personnel records destroyed. Carr refused to resign at Beightler's request and said that he would fight the charges before the civil service commission.

HIGH DEBATERS LAND ANOTHER

Quakers Chalk Up Second Victory As Negatives Win Over Affirmatives

The Salem High school debate team chalked up its second victory of the season here Tuesday night when the negative squad defeated an affirmative team from Alliance High school.

The decision was returned by Prof. G. H. Wright of the public speaking department of Kent State university.

William Rogers and Constance Clark, both seniors, were the Salem speakers, while Alliance was represented by Donald Canfield and Thomas Dalrymple.

The debate subject was, "Resolved That the United States should form an alliance with Great Britain."

The Quaker debaters, who won over Leontonia last week, will entertain East Palestine here Jan. 30. At that time Salem will take the affirmative side of the same topic.

Approximately 100 heard the debate last night.

An ordinance which would grant the Ohio Edison Co. a new 25-year franchise, with concessions to the city, was introduced at council meeting Tuesday night, but its passage was held up until councilmen had time to study the situation further.

However, rate reductions for residential consumers, offered in the new franchise, are now in effect and users are being billed accordingly, it was explained. The rates have been filed with the state public utilities commission.

The residential rate reduction will effect a $5,500 savings annually to 43 per cent of the users who heretofore were not included in what the power company calls its higher bracket, where the rate drops accordingly as more current is used, it is explained.

CITY CHECKING ON PWA PROJECT

Requested To Keep Open Its Waterworks Contract No. 1

While still awaiting definite word from PWA authorities, city council was informed by Engineer F. S. Barckhoff last night that PWA officials have requested the city to keep open contract No. 1 of its water works project.

This contract is for erection of new scales, scale house and water line extensions, to cost $10,000. John Auld had been given the contract for the job just prior to the PWA's report that it would not accept council's revised plans.

Originally council had set the project up on a $62,944 program, with $28,324 coming as a federal grant to aid the work.

City Solicitor Lozier Caplan went to Columbus today where he was to check further into the PWA angle. In anticipation of a release by the government of the McKinley Heights sewer project, council last night instructed Clerk Paul Myers to notify approximately 47 residents of the area to pay their assessment costs at the city auditor's office in order that the sponsor's share of the project might be placed in fund.

No action was taken on the request of a Detroit bus firm for a franchise to operate bus lines in the city.

However, it was announced that the solicitor was studying a proposed franchise ordinance. Councilman C. F. Zimmerman reported that comments he had gathered on the street, in regard to the bus proposition, had been favorable.

Order Sidewalk Repair

Council instructed the clerk to notify several property owners to repair sidewalks in front of their homes.

Receipts: From city auditor, $3,184.50; donations, interest from banks and city bonds, $367.26; total, $3,551.76; city bonds owned by firemen's pension board, $7,556.00; cash in bank Dec. 31, $3,874.39; total, $11,439.39.

THE LID'S OFF

If you don't grab the money somebody else will. That argument has done strange things to America. It has forced local governments into line on many issues where otherwise they would have stood out against federal authority.

But Vermont, some say, isn't part of the United States because it voted for Alfred M. Landon, so it's fitting it should be the first state to get out of line.

The issue is whether or not Vermont must surrender state sovereignty to obtain federal flood control aid. A flood control bill passed in June, 1938, provided that states should exchange claim of ownership to flood control projects for full payment of costs by the federal government. Ohio was one of the first states to line up; it wanted money more than it wanted ownership of the facilities of the Muskingum conservancy district.

Vermont, spurred by Gov. George D. Aiken, has chosen to test this "usurpation." It refuses to surrender sovereignty and resources to the federal government for funds. Specifically, though willing on its own terms to let the federal government use certain land within the state, it is unwilling to let the government confiscate the land if Vermont's terms are not agreed to.

Vermont has decided to challenge the practice of bartering states' rights for federal funds. A state refuses to fall for the argument that if it doesn't grab the money somebody else will. It says it doesn't want money at the price of sovereignty. It challenges the ethics of bribing local government into complying with federal spending policy—a move which reopens the whole question of states' rights.

ONCE MIGHTY BRITAIN

Two facts stand out conspicuously in the wake of Prime Minister Chamberlain's visit with Premier Mussolini.

One is that negotiations are stalled pending an insurgent victory in Spain. The other is that an insurgent victory never seemed more probable.

Consequently, it is a safe bet that Great Britain will do nothing to impair the effectuality of the drive to overthrow the loyalist government in Barcelona. It will give tacit aid to Gen. Franco's side, because that is Italy's side.

Never has it been plainer how the British lion is being made to jump through the hoops at the command of the "realists" running Europe's diplomatic show.

Mr. Chamberlain, it was reported, would give up nothing at Rome. As it turned out, he didn't give up anything, but neither did he bring anything away, except a dictator's promise to consider further appeasement provided Mr. Chamberlain's country took no steps to influence the outcome of a war in Spain.

And that, in the present order of things, is as close to a diplomatic triumph as once mighty Britain can approach.

FLYER IN PSYCHOLOGY

Connecticut is latest to turn up an illustration of man's indifference to his own money. That state holds a fund of nearly $200,000 representing 4,500 bank accounts which have remained inactive for 30 years. At the end of 40 years the money automatically reverts to the state.

Similar incidents were common following the bank crisis early in the depression. Banks which subsequently made funds available to depositors were unable in many cases to entice the rightful owners of the money to make claims. Two instances of the same kind of neglect have cropped out recently in this state: the rate refunds due to telephone subscribers in certain cases, and applications for unemployment insurance. In each case an anticipated rush failed to materialize.

On the other hand, eagerness is an unfailing characteristic of beneficiaries of wills. Competition to be first on hand is so intense it leads to endless litigation and bickering. If a flyer in psychology be permissible, it must be because the human animal is infinitely more eager to grab what doesn't clearly belong to him than to possess what does.

CORPUS DELICTI

His family's scoffing at official announcement of the death of Saturnino Cedillo, Mexico's No. 1 public enemy, illustrates an odd circumstance about personal leadership.

Cedillo's personal followers, it may be presumed, would scatter soon after the loss of their leader. That explains why there have been numerous reports of his death, all subsequently denied.

The same situation confronts every man in the same predicament, as well as some more favorably situated. Even Adolf Hitler has not been immune to rumors that he was dead and a double was standing in his shoes.

A revolutionist like Cedillo conceivably could continue to give the Mexican government a headache even after death, provided confirmation of the fact could not be made. Fear of revenge in the event the report proved false could hold them in line.

If the government can deliver the body to his family, which it promises to do, the revolt in San Luis Potosi, led by the disgruntled general, will be over. It was for some such reason that the Greeks dragged Hector around Troy seven times; they wanted to be sure the Trojans' demoralization would be complete.

A new type of gun has been perfected in the laboratories of Cornell University for smashing atoms. This type of equipment is terribly expensive, however, and most folks would prefer to use a hammer.

SURPRISING developments of a far-reaching influence in your life, may occur today. There may be change of major importance. This may call for change in environs and objectives and may bring a dramatic, romantic experience or extraordinary adventure into the unknown. Superiors, elders and a feminine force are effective in putting over possibly audacious programs.

Those whose birthday it is need not be surprised if a revolutionary force may be precipitated into their life during the coming year, demanding a complete change in the plans, aims, objectives, surroundings and associations. This sudden occurrence may spell adventure, romance, dramatic experience, or it may relate to some great discovery or unique creative talent, in which superiors, elders and feminine approval may prove a determining factor or inspiration.

A child born on this day will be unusually talented, original, independent in thought and action, and may reach some sort of public recognition or a dramatic career, through unique romance or adventure. It may travel far.

ANOTHER HITLER VICTORY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The signing of the German-Turkish credit agreement in Berlin, granting Turkey a loan of $60,000,000, represents another important victory for Nazi Leader Hitler in his amazing drive for economic and political control of eastern Europe and the Balkans.

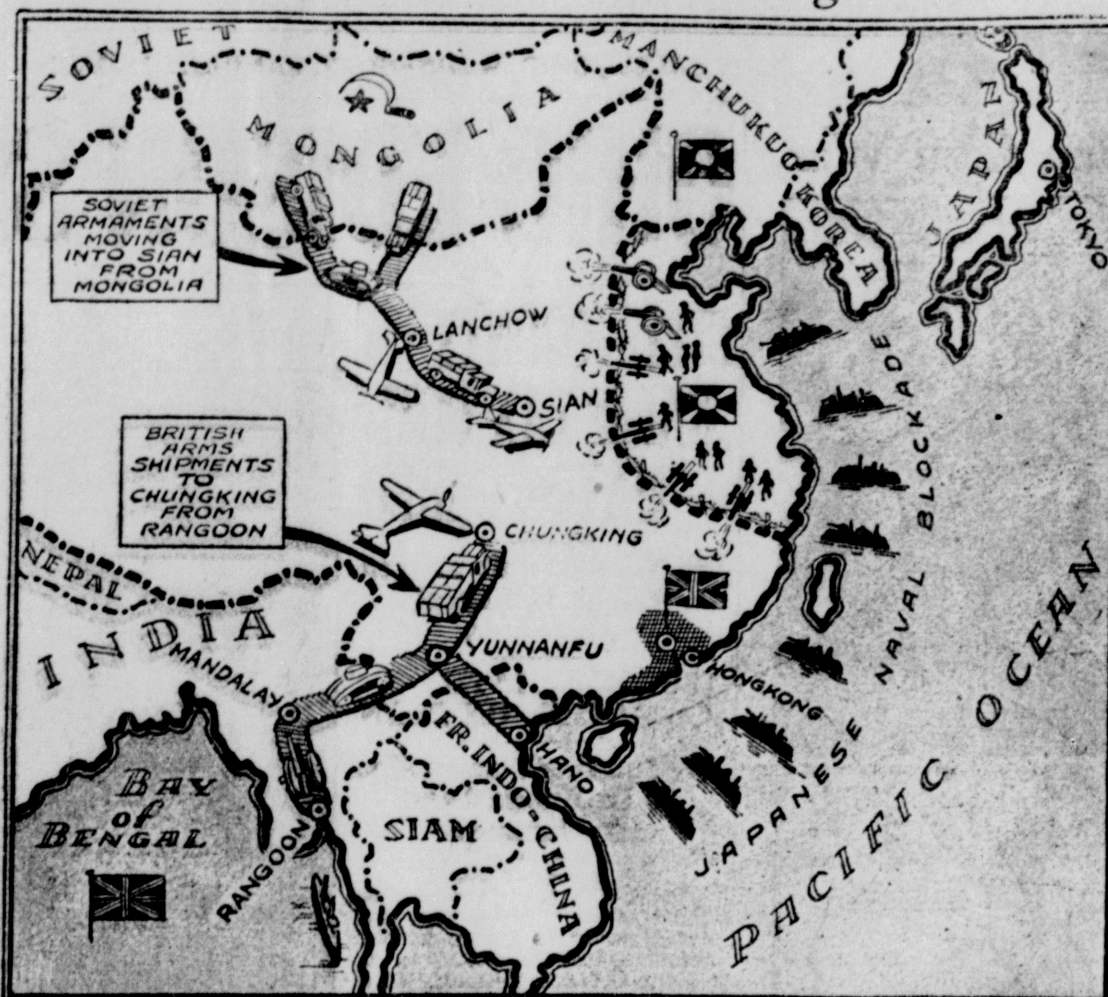

It means that he has forged another link in the chain with which he is trying to bind a resisting Turkey. And it means a further challenge to Britain's influence in this area which she must control to safeguard her near eastern interests and the Suez.

Actually the credit was negotiated last October at the time of the Czechoslovak crisis, when Herr Hitler sent his economic squad dashing through the Balkans on a trade roundup. His super-salesman and minister of economics, Walter Funk, drove the deal at Ankara.

I happened to arrive in the Turkish capital a few days later and made a discovery which spoke volumes on the relations between the two countries. Funk had offered Turkey a credit loan not of $60,000,000 but of double that amount—$120,000,000—and this vast sum had been turned down although the Ankara government was far from rolling in riches.

The answer to this was that England recently had loaned Turkey some $72,000,000, and the Turks declined to play favorites by accepting a bigger grant from the Germans. Turkey was afraid of the oncoming German flood and, while she felt it would be highly impolitic to refuse a Berlin loan altogether, was looking to England for protection.

How Democracies Are Aiding China

Hard-pressed China now is beginning to receive aid—indirectly—as this map shows. England and the United States in recent months have made available $50,000,000 in credits for supplies. British arms shipments are made possible again over a new road from Yunnanfu to Chungking, connecting with through rail and motor routes from Rangoon on the Bay of Bengal. And supplies from the Soviet Union are coming to Sian on a road rebuilt for motor traffic from the part of Mongolia controlled by the Soviet. This road has two forks into Mongolia.

No More Bragging

ARKANSAS CITY, Kas.—Chief of police Lester Richardson is going to quit making reports.

Grand Jury Probe Report Is Nearing

LISBON, Jan. 18.—The Columbi-ana county grand jury was expected to report late this afternoon, concluding a session opening Jan. 9 and including a probe into gambling activities in the county as well as an investigation of 22 transcript cases.

The jury adjourned at 2 p. m. Tuesday to permit Miss Margaret Smith of Salineville, a member, to attend the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Ann Smith, former Salineville resident. Jurors re-convened this morning, hearing six witnesses testify.

A large number of secret indictments are expected as a result of the gambling investigation, striking at slot machine and "bug" operators.

There's No Cure For Cold, But There Can Be Relief

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
"Here lies our wife, Samantha Proctor. She ketched a cold and would not doctor. She could not stay, she had to go. Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

DOCTORS wish this ancient New England epitaph were scientifically accurate. Unhappily, so far as they know, Mrs. Proctor would have been just as badly off if she had "doctored". No doctor knows any cure for a cold. (But it should be added that an analytical study of the inscription would require us to say that Mrs. Proctor probably didn't have a cold at all. Colds do not kill, and incidentally, in spite of statements to the contrary, they do not "run into" anything that kills.)

But although colds can't be cured, they can be relieved. There are many cold remedies, but there is nothing mysterious about them. The ingredients are well known, and nobody has a corner on them. Cold remedies can be classified as follows:

1. Physical Therapy. The best Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

known example is the sweat. Best sweat is still the mustard foot bath. A teaspoonful of domestic mustard tied in a linen bag is allowed to soak in a quart of cool water. When the patient is ready, add a gallon of water at 110 or 115 degrees.

2. Inhalants. Aromatic substances reduced to steam, breathed in, soothe and help to hasten healing of inflamed bronchial tubes. You can get them at any druggist's. Best known are compound tincture of benzoin, thymal, menthol and camphor, eucalyptol, oil of white pine.

Method Important
The method of giving an inhalant is important. Just to throw it on a pan of hot water and get over it under a towel is irritating to the skin around the mouth and nose. The best scheme is to get a large rubber tube. Put the medicine on top of steaming water in a pitcher. Cover the top of the pitcher with a towel, and thrust the rubber tube under the towel and breathe in.

3. To rub on the chest: Counter irritants. They make your cold feel better because they take away the soreness in the chest, but mostly because after they are rubbed on the chest, they vaporize and you breathe this soothing vapor as an inhalant. None is better than old-fashioned Hartshorn Liniment, which is mostly ammonia water (should cost about ten cents a bottle).

4. To spray or snuff up the nose. The newest and most effective drug of this sort is benzadrine. Only sprays can be made from menthol and camphor, two solids which when rubbed together, liquefy; oil of eucalyptus, oil of cinnamon, oil of clove. The Aromatic spray, which is official in the National Formulary, and therefore can be supplied by any druggist, contains most of these.

No Drug Is Cure

5. To be taken by mouth. There is no drug which will cure a cold, but many give a sense of relief. The most widely used is aspirin; it takes away the aching feeling. In a series of experiments a few years ago Dr. Diehl, of the University of Minnesota, found that only codeine was effective in shortening a cold.

6. Cough medicines. These are most good because they are sugary and aromatic and soothe the larynx on the way down. Coughing gets to be a reflex from an inflamed throat after it has kept up some time. Syrup of wild cherry is the favorite ingredient. Ammonium chloride will be found in most cough mixtures. It is excreted through the bronchial mucosa and thus loosens a cold.

Cough lozenges and troches. Troches of elm are official. They act in the same way as cough medicines, by soothing the throat.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 W. 45th St., New York City. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS—ACHES

It takes more than "just a salve" to bring speedy relief. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old soothing, warming Musterole to penetrate the surface skin and help to quickly relieve the painful local congestion and aches due to colds.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly. Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses, in these strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong, 40%. All druggists.

anticipation of 1939 sales tax revenue.

The notes were issued for last year's relief needs with a tacit understanding between officials of the various subdivisions and the old legislature that the new general assembly would provide funds to redeem the notes in a special allocation.

Declined To Issue Notes

Some cities, fearful that they would be required to pay off the notes with sales tax revenues designated for operating expenses, declined to issue them.

The local governments which the state auditor's office said issued notes in anticipation of 1939 sales tax collections and the amounts are:

Cuyahoga county $26,800; Cleveland $37,374; Garfield Heights $2,257; Columbus $60,699; Lucas county $20,463; Toledo $134,921; Mahoning county $45,495; Dayton $61,000; Mansfield $8,058; Madison township (Richland county) $3,045; Stark county $46,710; Akron $36,365; and Grand (Trumbull county) $3,000.

The legislature authorized the issuance of $1,500,000 worth of these notes.

"Charlie Chan in Honolulu," presenting Sidney Toler in the role of the clever detective originally created by Earl Derr Biggers and portrayed for several years on the screen by the late Warner Oland, will be featured for one day, Thursday, at the State.

Incidentally, the screen detective's Number Two son, played by Sen Yung, makes his screen debut. In former stories it was the oldest son of the Chan family that provided the comedy relief in the exciting mystery tales.

Toler Fills Role Well

Toler, resembling the popular conception of the detective to a remarkable degree, nevertheless imbues the role with his own personality. The Chan witticisms fall easily from his lips and, in the enthusiastic appreciation of the audience, it is easily recognizable that 20th Century-Fox has found an able actor to carry on the great film tradition of Charlie Chan's adventures.

"Charlie Chan in Honolulu" presents a challenge to Chan in his own home town—an audacious killer daring to strike almost on the sleuth's very doorstep.

While Chan is visiting a daughter at the hospital, where she is shortly to present the sleuth with his first grandson, a call comes to Charlie's home: a man has been murdered on a boat in the harbor.

Chan's No. 2 son, deciding not to bother "Pop," rushes to the scene himself. Chan, after finally learning of the call, follows.

All the Elements

The elements of the mystery are these: A murdered man; a young girl who has been carrying $300,000 (now missing) across the Pacific; a bewildered and bewildering scientist; and a motley collection of crew members, ranging from the captain on down.

Later on another victim is murdered, an attempt is made to assassinate Chan himself, and a number of other complications enter the mystery. Chan, carrying on in his usual manner, effectively solves the crimes and brings the case to a

The Home
Savings and Loan Co.

YOUNGSTOWN SALEM STRUTHERS

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE

On January 15, 1889, The Home Savings & Loan Company was incorporated. With 1939, the institution begins its second half century of service.

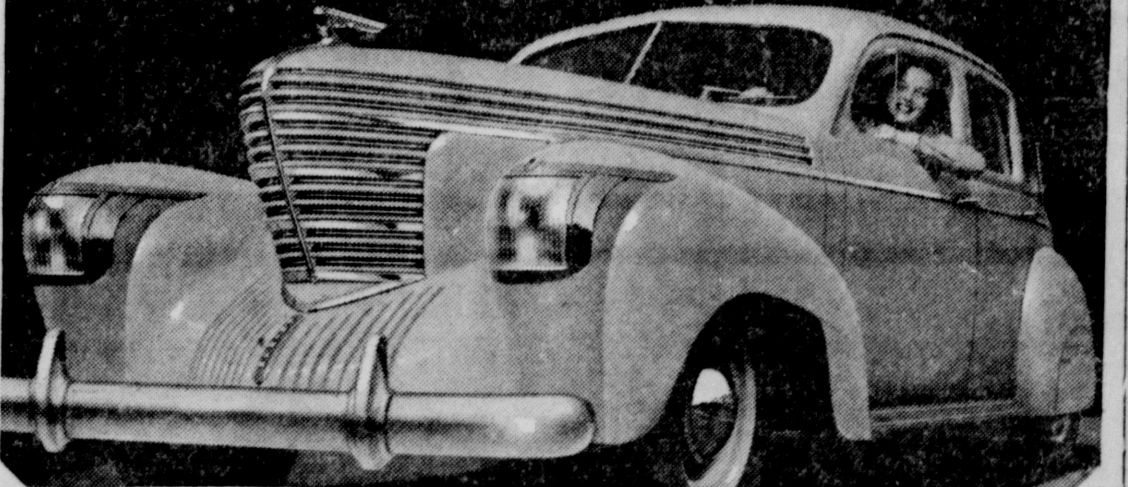

As its name implies, this company was organized for the two-fold purpose of (1) encouraging savings accounts and (2) offering a safe and convenient plan of loan to people who wanted to borrow money on mortgage of real estate. On its savings side it has been the privilege of this institution to serve something like a hundred and fifty thousand different individuals. Operating on the mutual plan, The Home has paid dividends on these savings accounts, and the total amount of dividends so paid and credited by this institution in these fifty years is only a trifle short of twenty-five million dollars.

On its lending side it has been the privilege of this company to serve more than thirty-five thousand borrowers, many of whom today own their homes free and clear of debt. This company was one of the first in the United States to offer to the general public a long time partial payment loan secured by mortgage on real estate.

The Home continues to operate on the plan on which it was originally founded—service to savers and home owners. With the background of its fifty years of experience it respectfully solicits your business, whether it be a savings account or a mortgage loan.

Slays Woman?

Police in Chicago listened with amazement as Joseph Borys, 62, confessed he had slain a woman with a hatchet and had kept the body in his apartment for 24 hours. While the body lay on a backroom bed, Borys and his wife went about their regular routine as usual and delayed notifying police "so we could have a quiet day," Borys declared. The slain woman was Mrs. Frances Piotrowski, whom Borys accused of swindling him out of an apartment building. Police expressed some doubts as to the truth of Borys' confession despite the finding of the body.

One-Time Desperado Is Reported Missing From Penitentiary

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—The mysterious disappearance of Howard Bowman, one-time Ohio desperado, from Ohio penitentiary put peace officers on his trail today and left a puzzle for prison officials. The 23-year-old man who was serving a life sentence for Brown county bank robberies vanished sometime yesterday. Warden James C. Woodward said he didn't know when, but theorized he probably made his departure on one of several supply trucks that left during the day for other state institutions. Employed in the kitchen as a cook, he was last seen about 9:30 a. m., and was missed at noon roll call.

Woodward said he was wearing an ordinary gray prison suit.

Howard was the brother of Neal Bowman and both were admitted to the prison in 1931 for looting Highways and Russellville banks. Later Neal was transferred to the Lima State hospital for the criminal insane, from which he escaped. For three months he staged a series of outlaw forays in southern Ohio and Kentucky which ended with his execution in Kentucky for the slaying of a 19-year-old boy.

Bowman's escape here was the first successful one since Frank Moltz fled in a coal car in February, 1936. Woodward said. Moltz was captured in Detroit a week later.

PHILADELPHIA — Fire Captain Francis Hoshon and his men, answering an alarm from a store building, had to walk up to the eighth floor because the elevators weren't running. Puffing and weary from carrying hand chemical extinguishers, the firemen arrived at the scene—only to find the store's sprinkling system already had put out the flames.

BUTTE, Mont.—During 10 years as a skyscraper window washer, Larry McAllister, 33, has washed an average of 100 windows a day, or a total of 288,600 windows, with only one fall and a "near one" from the top of a building. In the latter case, he admits he took his mind off his work. He waved his hand at a girl in the street below.

NIGHT HARNESS RACING DUE TO SHOW INCREASE

Trotting, Pacing Appear Set To Enjoy Good Season In 1939

By E. ROLAND HARRIMAN
President, Grand Circuit

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Night harness horse racing, which enjoyed one of its best seasons in 1938, definitely is headed for bigger and better things in 1939 if for no other reason than it is to be sponsored by one organization for the first time in history.

The formation of the United States Trotting association during the closing days of 1938 and the early part of this year was the most outstanding forward step ever taken by the light harness sport. It means much more than just the merging of the National, United and American trotting register associations.

Whereas in the past the parent bodies were composed of various track associations alone, the new organization is one that also includes owners, breeders and trainers, all working for the improvement of the sport. I don't see how the sport can fail to prosper with one set of conditions designed to please the public by proper regulation of the conduct of racing and with only one registration certificate required.

True, the American Trotting association has not approved the new setup but so many of its individual units have gone on record as favoring the U. S. T. that I look for it to come in officially within a short time. Directors have been elected and are serving from the American's territory along with representatives from all our 11 districts, each of which have three members on the board.

In the naming of G. W. Rittenour of Piquette, O., as president and Frank Wiswall of Albany as executive vice president and secretary, the new association selected wisely. Both men know the sport and have its best interests at heart.

With this setup and last year's record as a criterion, I look for a prosperous season for the smaller circuits as well as the Grand Circuit. Bidding was lively in the 1938 yearling marts, indicating an in-

Increased interest in obtaining a good trotter or pacer. Greyhound and Billy Direct, two of the horses responsible for the eight new records last year, will be back seeking still faster marks. It wouldn't be surprising to me if Billy Direct went below the 1:55 pacific mark he established in 1938 and if Greyhound beat his own world trotting record of 1:55/4.

Although the dates have not been set, I look for the Grand Circuit to have another complete program with the 17 stakes sponsored by the Trotting Horse Club of America bringing the best of the horses into action. The Hambletonian has drawn a field of 45 of the ranking three-year olds with Nibble Hanover the winter book choice. However, the two-year olds were so evenly matched in 1938 that anyone of a dozen might improve enough to take down the major share of the $40,000 purse at Goshen's Good Time park in August. That's the way it goes in this sport.

MY LOVE IS NEW by IRIS BENNETT

CHAPTER XX
Taking her hands, Gordon drew her to her feet and kissed her. "You don't have to say anything, Constance. Your coming tonight tells me everything I want to know. Yes, I knew. I saw it happen every day you were here. I saw it in your eyes. This was meant to happen. It was planned. It has to be. Don't run away from it anymore. Don't run away from anything as wonderful as this. You are never going to be unhappy again because I'm not going to let you be unhappy."

Tender words... She drew away and said, "No, don't kiss me again, please." The room was a blur.... "I'm engaged to Terry. I told you that. And I've loved him all my life. I didn't think anything could change it or anyone could come between us. I thought it was as unchanging as my love for my mother. Love is more than wanting a man to make love to you. That's the way it was with Terry and me. We were friends. But this.... Even now she could not explain it. She could not and perhaps never would find words to explain what had happened to her since the first weeks they had worked together. But something had taken possession of her and pulled up her roots and set her drifting, drifting straight to Gordon....

He said, "I know, darling." She shook her head. "But you don't know! You can't possibly know what has been in my mind all these weeks with everything falling apart and I trying to hold them together! But I couldn't hold them together because you were always coming between...."

"I've wanted you more than I've ever wanted anyone. And tonight.... Why did she love him? Why? Was it love or was it madness? Suddenly she felt calmer. "I don't know anything about you, Gordon, except what I've read. You—you don't have to do anything about this. You needn't feel responsible. I came tonight but I...."

"Don't say you are never coming again because you are. Every day. Because I love you." He smiled. "Now will you let me kiss you again?" He had said he loved her. It was pleasant to have a beautiful girl love you when the world had turned against you. It was exciting to hold Constance Darby in your arms and say tender, lovely things to her and kiss her warm soft mouth. But of the tomorrow that was important to her he was afraid to think. And although he had said that it was planned and meant to be, had said it because it was a pretty thing to say, he had never meant to marry her. And her money and love for him, could solve his pressing problems! And yet he knew what her coming tonight would cost her. She would break her engagement to Terry Cannon. To Constance love could never be an exciting adventure. To her love went beyond stolen kisses and tender words and promises that were never meant to be kept. To Constance love was marriage....

Marry her? Well, why not? Avis had made her choice and he had nothing to lose and Constance would be a radiant and beautiful bride to take back to New York....

He smiled down at her. "I love you for a thousand reasons, my darling, but mostly because you came tonight. You didn't know what I'd say, if I loved you, or if I'd promise anything or offered anything. You didn't look beyond tonight and I love you for it. Most girls want their futures wrapped up prettily and presented to them the minute a man says, 'I love you.'"

"I'm afraid I'm not different from other girls, Gordon."

He laughed. "But I'm offering you your future now and it won't be dull." Tilting her chin, he looked into her eyes. "Will you marry me in October when the book is finished?"

Accused as Girl Slayer

Ernest Mahr

Accused as the hatchet slayer of 16-year-old Ruth Scott of Millwaukee, Ernest Mahr, young ex-convict, is pictured after his arrest. Mahr has signed a confession, according to police. He seriously wounded Ruth's mother, Mrs. James Scott, 57, who had known Mahr since childhood and befriended him on various occasions when he got into trouble with the police.

"Yes, I'll marry you, Gordon." He kissed her again and thought that there were worse things in the world than having Constance for your wife. Perhaps this was the solution after all. By October his friends in New York would have ceased to talk about him and would be talking about someone else and his marriage to a beautiful unknown girl would divert and amuse them. Perhaps, after all, it would be Constance who would put him in their good graces again. And if the book were a success, he would have enough money to keep them until he found a job. Suddenly he felt happy and relieved....

Constance was thinking of Terry. Thinking of Terry while in Gordon's arms.... He must know at once. But how to tell him, she wondered, how to make the blow less cruel.... She ached. Her mother, her father, Rosalind, Mary and Paul Cannon.... everyone would have to know "I'll have to have the courage to face them," she thought and remembered that there had been no need of courage to tell them that she and Terry were in love, and of a marriage that was to be in October but which now would never be with him....

He smiled. "Your eyes are far away. You're thinking that this will cause a sensation and it will. Gordon Keith to marry Northwood girl. Can't you see it? Let them talk. But if you'd rather they didn't know for awhile.... Perhaps Avis would change her mind and come back and stand in this room where Constance was standing now and say, 'Even if I lose, I'll take a chance with you, Gordon.' He said, 'Perhaps with so much talk centered around Rosalind at the moment you would rather not tell anyone just yet.'"

"I must tell Terry. I can't let him go on thinking that I—that we...." "Of course. Again he tilted her chin with his hand and looked into her troubled face. "Don't blame yourself, Constance. Don't torture yourself with feelings of disloyalty and guilt. We didn't ask to love each other. It just happened. It has happened many times before." And because her eyes were still far away, far away with the boy she had loved since her childhood, he said, "Smile at me. Does loving me make you so unhappy? We'll have a marvelous time together. But now you're tired. We won't work tonight. We won't work until you've seen Terry and told him."

The night was studded with stars when they came out together. She thought, "What do I feel? What do I feel? And knew that she felt light-headed and completely unlike herself. Was this true? Had he actually said the things he had said? Had she promised to marry him? Yes, in October, in October.... Then why wasn't she happy? "When everyone knows and everything is straight, I'll be happy. But not until then."

She tried to smile. "It doesn't seem real, Gordon."

"Don't wake up tomorrow and think it was a dream. And Constance, I shall try to be everything you want me to be. I swear it."

She had been gone only a few moments and he was still standing on the lawn, smoking, when the blue car pulled into the driveway. Avis' white satin dress studded with brilliant shimmered in the moonlight as she alighted from the car and crossed the lawn to Gordon.

He was ready for her. "Calling a bit late, aren't you? Didn't you forget your coat, Avis?" She lifted her flaming head. "I was upstairs and I saw Constance's car go by the house. I knew she'd been here. You sent for her! That's what I did when I walked out on you. My exit was her entrance."

He saw that she was trembling. "Haven't we better go in the house? You're cold."

"I'm not cold." Coming nearer, she lay her hand on his sleeve and her voice when she spoke again was less harsh. "Why does it have to be Constance of all girls? Don't you know she's going to be married in October? Rosalind told me. She said that Terry Cannon was the sweetest person in the world. You're back at your old tricks again, Gordon. Oh, I don't blame her for falling for you. How can I blame her? I did, didn't I? I and a hundred others who know more about life and men than Constance. You sent for her...."

From his pocket he took the silver cigarette case, opened it, and passed it to her. "Have a cigarette and stop shaking like a leaf and stop shouting, Avis. Constance and I are going to be married in October."

"Married!" He nodded as he held the flame to her cigarette. "Why shouldn't we? She loves me."

"With her eyes closed. You'll break her heart in a month. You'll disappoint her in a thousand different ways. You'll be unfaithful to her. You'll ruin her life. Oh, why am I bothering? Why should I care what she does or what you do? Why am I making myself miserable about it? If only you had never come back...."

"You helped to make this decision for me. Let's cut out the quibbling, Avis. I asked Constance to marry me and I'm going through with it. I'm going to take her away from this place forever and I'm going to do everything in my power to make her happy. It's a big order, living up to her. With you it would be different. I know exactly what I've done tonight. I haven't lost my head."

"You asked me first. I wonder what Constance would say if she knew she were second-choice." She despised herself for coming and despised the futile argument. Her father's permission granted for her to go away, she had not been able to bring herself to go. Night after night she had looked at the lights in the Spanish house, wondering who was with him, and tonight when she had seen Constance's car drive by, she had rushed out. She was a fool. Go away and forget him. Go away to Paris and buy clothes and dance until dawn every night in other men's arms and try to forget the only arms she wanted around her.

With a pathetic little smile she said, "I'm behaving like the spoiled brat I'm supposed to be. I want to have my cake and eat it, too. I want you but I want you to love me for myself. Tonight I wish I didn't have a penny. I wish I could love you as blindly as Constance does. I'm going away as soon as my favorite ship sails again."

"Aren't you going to wish us luck?"

Coming closer, she held out her hands and lifted her eyes. "If a leopard can change his spots, please try to change yours for her. You'll marry Constance for keeps because she's the kind of girl who'll stick no matter what happens. You'll never have to worry that she's flirting with somebody else when your back is turned. You have a lot of good in you, Gordon. Maybe she is the right woman for you after all."

He pitied her and admired her. Poor little rich girl, he thought. "You and I might have done a lot of foolish, glamorous things, Avis. With your money...."

"You always think of me and my money in the same breath, don't you?" He smiled. "You never let me forget it for a moment. Are we parting as friends? I won't forget you. You're too vivid. I won't ever forget the way you jerk up your red head defiantly. I won't forget the few tender moments we've had."

Quickly she withdrew her hands and her voice was choked. "If I stay a minute longer, I'll want more tender moments with you, Gordon. Then we'd be in it deeper than ever and perhaps you wouldn't marry Constance in October." The little train of her lovely dress followed her silver sandals over the grass. "Good-bye. Good luck. Sorry I came...."
